Job Rate Improves In U.S. Unemployment

Falls to 5.4%, A 14-Year Low

Compiled by Our Staff From Disputches WASHINGTON - The U.S. civilian unemployment rate fell to 5.4 percent in April, the lowest figure since 1974, as demand for U.S. exports continued to increase factory hiring, the Labor Department said Friday.

It was the third consecutive monthly drop for the unemploy-ment rate, which was 5.6 percent in March.

Growth in new factory jobs. which had been sluggish the previous three months after rising dramatically in 1987, accounted for more than a quarter of the 174,000 increase in nonfarm payrolls in April.

Pacing the increase were exportrelated industries, such as machinery and fabricated metal products. But production jobs in the U.S. automobile industry also climbed by 10,000, reversing wide layoffs in January and February,

The rise in nonfarm payrolls was slightly below the 250,000 that fi-nancial markets had expected, and was less than the revised 296,000 climh in March. The department

The Latest Word in Telecommunication: 'Fax It'

By Calvin Sims

New York Times Service

NEW YORK - A boom in facsimile machines is sweeping the husiness world and beginning to alter the way people conduct their affairs.

Driven by falling prices and the ability to send a document across the country or around the world in about 20 seconds using ordinary telephone lines, the machines. about the size of typewriters and costing as little as $800, are rapidly appearing in offices and homes.

Their use is causing the dissemination of a new verb -to fax, as in "I faxed him the letter this morning."

"With the advent of overnight mail, you now need everything yesterday, and since the price of a fax is so low, practically every department and business can justify purchasing one, said Julie Weiss, an analyst for Data-quest Inc., a market research firm in Sen Jose, California. Market analysts predict that growing numbers of individuals will also use the machines for personal tasks, such as banking or ordering merchandise by mail. Last year, more than 417,000 of the machines were shipped in the United States, up sharply from 187,000 in analyst with CAP International Inc., a market research firm in Marshfield, Massachusetts. He predicted sales of 900,000 machines in the United States this year, and said that European sales would be slightly behind that figure. In 1987, he said, about 425,000 of the machines were placed in Europe.

Retific sales of the machines grew to $914 million last year in the United States, from $283 million in 1982. Analysis expect total sales to surpass $1 billion this year. To send a document, both parties need only a machine and a telephone line. Also, the machines are being used instead of computers for transmission of data.

Facsimile machines, or fax machines, as they are called, scan a document and convert dark marks into digital pulses that are changed into audible tones. They are transmitted over standard phone lines. The receiving machine reconverts the tones into digital pulses and prints a copy of the document.

NOUMEA, New Caledonia ---Indigenous Kanaks warned Friday that the deaths of 19 Kanak rebels during a battle to rescue a group of French bostages would not deter their fight against French rule in the South Pacific territory. About 500 Kanaks gathered in a poor suburb outside Nouméa to express solidarity with the rebels, who were killed when French commandos stormed a cave on the island of Ouver to free 23 law officers from two weeks of captivity.

The meeting took place after the Kanak Socialist National Liberation Front said the 19 were martyrs and threatened all-out war in retaliation.

The operation's total death toll, which included two French commandos, was raised to 21 on Friday.

An army spokesman said that soldiers combing thick scrub on the island had found the bodies of three more rebels, bringing to 19 the number of separausts killed during the seven-hour assault on Thursday. A wounded leader of the kidnappers died during the night. Fifteen bodies were found immediately after the battle.

Organizers of the protest meet-ing called for annther rally on Fri-day and warned that they might march into Nouméa "to protest against France's colonial war."

"The French government has taken the initiative," Raphael Mapou, a separatist, told reporters at the front's headquarters. "Nine-teen deaths will oot slow us down." A separatist trade union said it was appealing to its 2,000 mem-bers, mainly dockers and health and air transport workers, to stage a 24-hour strike on Friday.

The front's leaders said they would call on their people to stay at home and hring trade to a standstill

More than 8,000 French troops and police were put on maximum alert after the front's leaders called on their supporters on Thursday to "take up the gauntlet against colonialism because the hour to fight has come.

Bernard Pons, the French minister for overseas territories, speaking on national radio, said he had ordered the alert "because I know that here and there terrorists are gearing up for action."

The front's militants, who have been been waging a two-week battle nf barricades and bullets against French rule, had said the hostages would be released unharmed if Paris oamed an independent mediaur to open talks oo independence,

French officials said the hostages were held in a scrub-covered cavern oo a seaside cliff by a group of fanatics.

The Final Stage France votes Sunday in the second and final round of its presidential election.

Of the nine condidates in the first round April 24, two remain in the runoff - the incumbent, François ditterrand, 71, and the prime minister, Jacques Chirac, 55. Approximately 35,000 polling stations in metropolitan France will open at 8 A.M., and remain open for 12 hours. Accurate computer projections are expected shortly after the polling places close.

In the first round, Mr. Mitterrand, the Socialist party candidate, won 34.1 percent of the vote. The vote on the right split among three candidates; Mr. Chirac of the Rally for the Republic (19.9%), Raymond Barre of the Union for French Democracy (18.5%) and Jean-Marie Le Pen of the National Front, (14.7%).

Since the right won parliamentary elections in March 1986, Mr. Mitterrand has ruled jointly with his rival, Mr. Chirac. If he wins, Mr. Mitterrand has said he will dismiss the prime minister.

Junipero Serra a Roman Catho-lic saint will be taken Sept. 25, when the Majorca-born mis-sionary will be beatified by Pope John Paul II. Father Serra, who led a group of Franciscan friars in establishing 21 missions throughout California, died in 1784. Sainthood for Serra has been actively opposed by American Indians, who contend that he enslaved their ancestors. The priest's proponents argue that, on the contrary, he protected them against exploitation by Spanish soldiers. The Internal Revenue Service has shortsightedly closed a loophole that was to the government's own benefit, Joseph D.C. Wilson 3d says in a letter to The New York Times. The agency ruled in March that taxpayers out of the United States on April 15 would no longer have an extra two months, until June 15, to file income tax returns unless they were absent at least two weeks. (U.S. citizens living abroad get an automatic extension to June 15, but are liable to interest on unpaid tax from April 15.) The day the ruling was announced, three-month U.S. Treasury bills were yielding 5.69 percent interest. The interest charged on underpayment of income tax is 10 percent," Mr. Wilson noted.

Legislation for new U.S. coins has been endorsed by 61 of the 100 senators and 85 of the 435 members of the House of Representatives. It calls for new designs on the reverses of the five coins in mass circulation. Their obverses would portray the same five presidents, but new likenesses would "be considered." The Lincoln cent has been a fixture for nearly 80 years, longer than any other coin in American history. Even its "new" reverse, portraying the Lincoln memorial, has been in use since 1959. The Washington quarter was issued in 1932, the Jefferson nickel in 1938, the Roosevelt dime in 1946 and the Kennedy half dollar in 1964.

TO THE AMERICAN COLLEGE IN PARIS

We have known over 10,000 of you - our former students - during the past 25 years. Many of you completed a four-year degree program and graduated from the College. Others returned to home universities after the study abroad experience. You can be proud of all that you accomplished during your years with us.

This weekend, the Alumni Association has invited you back on the occasion of the 25th Anniversary of The American College in Paris.

You will notice changes on campus and enthusiastic talk about the future. Our student body, representing 65 countries, has grown to 1,000. Our Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degree programs reflect a solid university curriculum in the traditional and international disciplines. Faculty-student ratio stands a strong 15 to 1. A major building project is under way.

We have made great strides during the past 25 years, and take pride in our continued commitment to excellence in American higher education.

Thank you for your support and your participation in our 25th Anniversary Celebration. This is a forward-looking time. We are eager to toast with you the next 25 years!

The Alumni Association of The American College in Paris wishes to thank the following sponsors for contributing to the 25th Anniversary festivities.

subject of ransoming hostages. That said, Prime Minister Jacques Chirac appears to have paid a humiliatingly high price to free the last three French captives in Lebanon.

France is said to have offered a final $330 million repayment to settle a $1 billion loan made by Iran in the days of the shah, and agreed to normalize relations with Tehran.

For its part, Iran has leaned on allies in Lebanon to free the three hostages - just days before a presidential vote in which Mr. Chirac is trailing the Socialist incumbent, Francois Mitterrand. To all appearances, it is a polinical coup for Mr. Chirac, who announced the news at an election rally in Strasbourg. Mr. Mitterrand can hardly do anything bot welcome the liberation of two diplomats and a journalist, as he has done.

With equally suspicious timing, French commandos on Thursday freed 23 hostages held by Melanesian separatists in New Caledonia. Was this show of force in the South Pacific territory, at the cost of 21 lives, meant to offset the appearance of cravenness in dealing with Iran?

In outmaneuvering his rival, Mr. Chirac has paid dearly. His dealings with Iran weak-

Americans need to be mindful of their en a common front against terrorism and own sins before lecturing anybody on the could encourage more hostage-taking and further manipulation of Western elections. Mr. Chirac's defenders reply that France pleaded the case for freeing more than 20 other foreigners still held captive, and will argue that case more strongly once it has an ambassador in Tehran. Against this is the disquieting fact that the chief French negotiator was the same interior minister, Charles Pasqua, who not long ago violated France's traditions of asylum by expelling Iranian exiles as a sop to Tehran.

It remains to be seen whether French citizens will truly appland this transaction. Mr. Chirac's party, after all, was founded by larger-than-life general who imagined France as the fairy-story princess with an exalted destiny: "Instinctively I have the feeling that Providence has created her either for complete successes or exemplary misfortunes ... Our country, as it is, surrounded by the others, as they are, must aim high and hold itself straight, on pain of mortal danger. In short, to my mind, France cannot be France without greatness."

De Ganlle's vision is impossible to reconcile with the appearance of appeasement. - THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Jaruzelski Learns Slowly

Poland has taken against the strike movement proves its own bankruptcy. In 1981 its answer to Solidarity was force - the nanonwide imposition of martial law by the army. In 1988, its answer to Solidarity is force - the invasion of factories and intimidation of striking workers by the police. The regime's efforts in the interim to win popular confidence appear to have come to naught. A Communist state ostensibly organized in the name of the working class again is using police-state methods to roll over the demands of the working class,

The few people participating in this strike movement did so in a modest and restrained way. They were peaceful. They readily accepted the mediation mission organized by the Roman Catholic Church, Their goal was the reasonable one of being accepted as a partner in preparing the reforms, involving sacrifices in the standard of living, that Poland desperately needs.

The action the Jaruzelski government in Lech Walesa, leader of the independent trade union Solidarity, was advising strikers at the Lenin Shipyard in Gdansk to ask for Solidarity to be legalized, just at their own plant in the beginning. But the government attacked the strikers, first politically and then with the police.

For Poland, the Soviet Union and any like country attempting to modernize, there are heavy political risks. It cannot be otherwise. But it is the Communist Party's monopoly of power that has created the prevailing stalemate, and it is only by the sharing of power in some form of pluralism that the people's requisite work, cooperation and loyalty can be mobilized, and that the vital support of the West can be gained. The would-be reformer, General Wojciech Jaruzelski, has had nearly a decade in power to learn this elementary lesson. The evidence of his truncheon-swinging police is that he has not learned it.

Welcome the Refugees

Two faces of U.S. immigration policy: On Wednesday, the deadline passed for undocumented aliens who have lived in the country since 1982 to apply for annesty under the 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act. But as this warmhearted program was winding up, the administration was in court pursuing narrow-minded efforts to force Salvadorans seeking political asylum in the United States to leave.

A federal judge in California has now rebuffed these efforts, and rightly so. The judge understood that the Salvadorans deserve the same generosity expressed by the amnesty program. It is past time for the Reagan administration to understand this. U.S. laws have tried to strike the proper balance between welcoming immigrants who face persecution in their homeland and resisting those who merely seek a better stangime there, it insisted that Salvadorans who came to America were fleeing poverty, not persecution. It consistently granted political asylum to less than 5 percent

In 1982, Salvadorans in the United States filed a lawsuit elaiming discrimination. Federal District Judge David Kenyon has now ruled in their favor. He cited evidence of political oppression and human rights abuses in El Salvador, and he found that the INS routinely refused to notify Salvadorans of their right to apply for political asylum, or otherwise discouraged them from seeking it.

Judge Kenyon found that Salvadorans were regularly coerced into signing voluntary departure forms, thus short-circuiting the deportation hearing process in which political asylum claims might be raised. And INS agents denied the Salvadorans access to lawyers, telephones, even writing materials. The United States knows how to be generous in its treatment of illegal aliens, as the extraordinary annesty program demonstrates. Judge Kenyon's ruling affirms that Salvadorans who seek political refuge merit that same welcoming spirit.

Here's How Moscow Can Prove Its Sincerity

WASHINGTON - How sincere is the Soviet Union about devising a new military doctrine that emphasizes defense and a "reasonable sufficiency" of forces? After my recent meeting with Defense Minister Dmitri Yazov, I came away convinced that Soviet officials are at least talking seriously about such a change. Nevertheless, there remains a wide gap between reality and thetoric. Moscow still seems to take a very expansive view of military "sufficiency" and shows no inclination to reduce its forces except in mutual arms agreements. Before the United States could begin to consider relaxing its defense posture, there would have to be hard evidence of a change in the offensive character of Soviet forces and a willingness to make unilateral reductions to bring those forces into parity with the West's. This is not to say that nothing was accom-plished. Simply holding such a meeting — the first between the chief American and Soviet military officials since World War II - set an important precedent and helped us each better understand the other's point of view. But the talks produced no concrete proof of any change in doctrine.

Yet, without promising any major adjustments in Soviet forces and military spending in the near future, General Yazov clearly suggested that a defensive doctrine was being implemented and that changes in forces would become evident. I pointed out to General Yazov that Soviet military spending, according to our estimates, is still growing by about 3 percent a year, adjusted for inflation, while the U.S. defense budget has declined by 11 percent in real terms since 1984. I added that the assessment of a former defense secretary. Harold Brown, still seemed to hold true: When we build, the Soviet Union builds; when we stop, the Soviet Union continues to build.

If Moscow truly wants to move to a defensive posture, it could take several steps without risk-ng its own security, including the following:

periority over the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in tanks, artillery and other offensive arms. The Soviet bloc has an especially threatening advantage in forces that could be used to invade, seize and hold territory in Western Europe. Arms inventories far exceed legitimate defense needs. · Withdrawing airborne and airmobile forces from Europe and dramatically reducing the relatively large numbers of airborne forces main-tained in the Soviet Union.

Airborne and airmobile forces reflect the of-fensive character of Soviet military power. In East Germany alone, the Soviet Union has nearly enough units to organize an entire airborne division. Such a division could be reinforced rapidly by numerous similar brigades and bartalions stationed elsewhere in Eastern Europe and in the Soviet Union, or be supported by the seven other fully manned Soviet airborne divisions. · Reducing other offense-oriented capabilities, such as large and growing stockpiles of military materiel in forward areas, bridge building equipment and engineering units in Eastern Europe and the continuing upgrading of army reserve divi-sions to active stains in the Warsaw Pact. All this strengthens Moscow's ability to invade.

· Joining America in reducing long-range nuclear forces through a strategic arms reduction treaty and in increasing the role of effective strategic defenses against ballistic missile attack. The Soviet Union continues to maintain large numbers of silo-based, first-strike intercontinental ballistic missiles. Soviet willingness to join us in shifting away from offensive nuclear forces, and toward a greater reliance on strategic defense, would contribute to mutual security and to a safer world in general.

The United States remains cager to see any signs of actions like these that would prove that Soviet doctrine has changed. Meanwhile, we con-sider the dialogue on military affairs to be useful, and we intend to continue it.

The Soviet Union has known its share of wartime suffering, and no one begrudges it a military that maintains Soviet national security. But Moscow can ensure its security without the aggressive doctrine and offensive posture it now maintains. So far, we have heard only Soviet claims about a shift in doctrine. We still await hard evidence.

A Close Brush With Super-OPEC Means Trouble Ahead

By Charles Krauthammer

WASHINGTON - As the West looks on benignly, the oil shock of the 1990s is being prepared. The United States refuses to do the one thing that would prevent it. And at least one enterprising American politi-cian is doing his bit to accelerate it. The foundation for the new shock is super-OPEC, a joining of the Orga-nization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and seven non-OPEC independent producers to retake om-trol of the world oil market. Last week, super-OPEC was very nearly born. Only a last-minute maneuver by Saudi Arabia forestalled it.

The non-OPEC seven — Angola, China, Colombia, Egypt, Malaysia, Mexico and Oman — control 18 percent of non-soviet two ou production. OPEC controls 38 percent. Last week in Vienna, the two groups met for the first time and nearly agreed to raise oil prices by jointly cutting production. The non-OPEC producers offered to cut exports by 5 percent (183,000 barrels a day) if OPEC made cuts of the same proportion. OPEC balked. A majority, led by cash-poor Algeria and Iran, offered a (proportionately) smaller cut of 300,000 harrels a day. Cash-rich Saudi Arabia refused. It held out for an equal, barrel-for-barrel OPEC cut (that is, 183,000).

Over a disagreement of about 100,000 barrels a day (one-fourth of 1 percent of free world production), the super-OPEC idea collapsed.

For now. The Saudi move looks tactical and temporary. First of all, it was meant to stymie Iran, with which Saudi Arabia had just broken diplomatic relations. Iran is desperate for cash to finance its war against Iraq. It needs higher oil prices. Saudi Arabia, with its huge reserves, does not. Its not to max

How global? Among the observers also to press for "price stability." Saving Texas may be a good idea, but Mr. Hance and his candidate at Vienna, watching and encouraging the price fixing, were the oil powers Norway and Texas. Texas was reprehave been going about it in the worst possible way. The worst possible way sented by Kent Hance, a member of the Texas Railroad Commission, is to raise the price of oil everywhere

If the worth price is pushed to, say, $20 from $15 a barrel, American consumers have to pay the extra $5 to domestic and foreign producers. But if the world price stayed at $15 and the United States slapped on a $5 per barrel between 1972 and 1982, Texas was not heard advocating price stability. Now that prices have collapsed, "stability" has become an ideal. Mr. riance is even prepared to cut Texas production to achieve it.

By Jim Hoagland PARIS - "We want these words to be heard in the Soviet Union: Our system has no choice but to make reforms. They can finish of walesa, they can finish off Gorba-chev, but this would only postpone the outbreak" of a bloody revolution against communism.

Another snappy quote from the Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, and a tactically elever one that links his fait and goals to those of Mikhail Gorbar, chev. But taken literally, Mr. Walk sa's declaration in front of the strike bound Lenin Shipyard in Gdank, ideological struggle in the Commin-nist world. It risks reinforcing the false notion that East Enropean diss dents and Mr. Gorbachev are fellow

" Mr. Walesa knows that the struggle his trade union movement has waget for years against General Wojcless Jaruzelski is dramatically different from Mr. Gorbachev's shadowboxin in the Moscow press against hard-liners nostalgic for Stalin.

But he is willing to blur these dis-tinctions to focus attention on the now undeniable reality that while General Jaruzelski pays hp service ta political and economic restructuring. (perestroika) as the wave of the future for all Communist nations, he rea-

The new cycle of strikes, protests and repression shows that General Jaruzelski does not believe the Communist system is contenued to re-form, as Mr. Gorbachev may. The gap-eral prefers to confront Solidarity, to accept paralysis at home and to punne a policy of kicklogical containment, while praising perestroits discutere. tablishes clearly that General Ia zelski has been unable to rebuild on replace his Communist Party as an instrument of control even though Solidarity remains outlawed. The general uses the party, which has lost a third of its three million members and any roots it ever had in the working class, as a spen for maintary rais Fearing exposure of the party's hol-lowness, he rejects Solidarity's effort to open a dislogue on social and eco-nomic reform in this stalemated artiety. The general is too weak to accept a situation in which an organization other than the party can show it can achieve what he cannot. Price increases are his attempt to find a substance for reform, not to begin perestroika.

When they are not in need of sching points off General Jameeski Solidarity activists acknowledge that Mikhail Gorbachev's political agenda is not theirs. "Gorbachev is in fact responding to what happened in Poland," Adam Michnik, a semor theoretician for Solidarity, told me a Yew months ago in Gdansk. "Gorbachev defends the system by trying to introduce thanks from within, rather than waiting for disaster to force change. He is a comterreformist, understanding that there is a general crisis in communism, not simply a Polish crisis." This picture of Mr. Gorbachev as leader chasing change rather than pushing it also appears in a provo tive article by S. Frederick Starr in the spring issue of Foreign Policy magazine. He paints Mr. Gorbachev as "a conservative reformer trying to save a system facing pressures beyoud his control." Mr. Starr's thesis is that Soviet 50ciety has changed dramatically-but quietly over the past decade as "ndi-vidual citizens in countless, fields plunged into innovative work, blithely ignoring official taboos." Pers-troika is Mr. Gorbachev's attempt to bring the decaying Soviet party into line with a natural evolution toward "a civil society" that demands a minimum of justice and efficiency. But the corollary notion that such society can evolve in piecement fashion and then significantly modify a ruling Communist party's monthly ly on power is taking a beating along with the activists in the streets and factories of Gdansk and Krakow. Poland has evolved into a pesttotalitarian society that is still at the mercy of its totalitarian institutions: Despite glasnost, the Soviet press continues to hlame Solidarity for all of Poland's problems and to praise General Jaruzelski. This suggests that Mr. Gorbachev takes a traditional Soviet view of Poland as a problem of security rather than one of reform and ideology. But in choosing to stand with General Jaruzeiski, Mr. Gorbachev risks undermining his own moral authority and credibility That is how Mr. Gorbachev's fate is ultimately tied to Lech Walesa's, whatever the Russian's intentions are The Washington Post.

Reagan Sweet, Reagan Sour

There probably are as many White House-watchers in Moscow as there are Kremlin-watchers in Washington. But people in that line of work in Moscow are said to have an easier time of it because America is such an open society. Try telling that to the analyst who perhaps even now is trying to explain to the boss what President Reagan really has on his mind.

Two weeks ago Mr. Reagan said some harsh things about the Soviets. A country that "continues to suppress free expression, religious worship and the right to travel," he said, cannot have normal relations with the United States any more than can a Soviet Union "that is always trying to push its way into other countries

Then on Wednesday, Mr. Reagan "applauded" the changes in Soviet society that have taken place under Mikhail Gorbachev. He said the Kremlin is releasing more political prisoners and putting fewer dissidents in mental hospitals. "We recognize that changes occur slowly," he said, "but it is better than no change at all." He even engaged in some glasnost of his own, acknowledging that America must do more to help the homeless, banish racial discrimination and create jobs for the unemployed. [One U.S. official] denied that the soft tone was meant to be an olive branch. Another said that it was.

At the risk of making things too easy for Moscow's wretched White House-watchers, we have a suggestion: The president should treat the Soviets like grown-ups who are trying to correct one of history's most massive mistakes. He can be firm on matters like human rights and the Third World without going to excesses of praise or blame. In fact, if he were to do that the firmness would stand out more sharply and not the excesses.

France: First the Joy

First comes the joy. Pure joy that, after three years of blackmail and horror, three French hostages [Marcel Fontaine, Marcel Carton and Jean-Paul Kauffmann] are finally free. Joy for them, their families and friends, for all those who saw a three-year nightmare come to an end. Joy, but sadness too, as their release has confirmed the death their fellow captive] Michel Seurat.

Tomorrow will come the questions. They are numerous and terrible. We know what the Iranians were demanding as the price of "normalizing" their relations with France -- weapons, political concessions, the re-lease of prisoners held in France. We don't yet know what they obtained.

- Marc Kravetz, Libération (Paris).

[Two years ago], Jacques Chirac promised to free our hostages in Lebanon. Mis sion accomplished. Yet already, some are saying that the price paid, just days before the election, had to have been too high.

But set aside politics for now - and witness the joy of those who have returned to freedom, the happiness of their families. Mr. Chirac kept his promise.

- Jacques Jacquet Francillon, writing in Le Figuro (Paris).

to conserve market share.

Which is the other reason the Saudis balked. The non-OPEC producers have been stealing OPEC market share for seven years. In 1981, the Saudis were producing 10 million barrels a day. They are now down to 4 million. As OPEC has cut produc-tion to prop up prices, the slack has been taken up by non-OPEC countries pumping at peak capacity. Chances are that the Saudis are bluffing or at least bolding out for a better offer. Super-OPEC is simply too good an idea for oil producers. The very anticipation of Vienna was enough to raise oil prices by about $3 a barrel (20 percent) in the two months preceding the meeting. Most of the world's oil exporters want to

But the words have fallen limp. The government seems unwilling or unable to persuade its security forces and government-sup-ported vigilantes to end rights abuses. As of January, not a single military or police officer had been convicted and scutenced for political killings -- or for any other rights offense. A reaffirmation and demonstra-tion of the Aquino government's commitment to human rights is urgently needed. The dream that accompanied the "ideal" revolution cannot be allowed to die.

Regime Criteria Sent to Guerrillas

By Robert Pear New York Times Service

WASHINGTON -- The United States has told the Afghan guernillas that it will support them in an effort to form a provisional govern-ment if they consolidate their control of most of the country and meet other criteria, according to State Department officials.

(1 An aide to Michael H. Armacost, indersecretary of state for political affairs, delivered that message to guerrilla leaders in Peshawar, Pakistan, last week,

A State Department official said Thursday m an interview: "We don't accept the legitimacy of the Kabul regime. We assume that the withdrawal of Soviet forces will inevitably lead to a change of government because all the evidence we see suggests that it's the Russian presence that keeps the current government in power."

General Najib on Friday after his talks with Indian officials. Under agreements signed April 14 in Geneva, the Soviet Union is supposed to start withdrawing its the resistance, which controls altroops from Afghanistan by May ready the bulk of the countryside, 15. to see that the Russians' withdrawal plan is implemented scrupulously and completely and, if possible, well ahead of schedule." the State Department official said. He said the Kremlin had many incentives to speed up the withdrawai.

"It's dangerous once you start withdrawing troops," said the official, who has a comprehensive view of U.S. policy toward Afghanistan. "The smaller the residual force, the more danger. So once it begins, I think there is a fair chance they will get out in six instead of nine months."

"I would think that by mid-summer, essentially everything except Kabul is likely to be in the hands of the resistance," the official said. "It is practically that way now." Listing the criteria for U.S. support he said Washington would welcome "a provisional government that controls territory and establishes a civil administration, possesses the capacity to assume the international obligations of Afghanistan, enjoys broad support and possesses the attributes of effective government." If the goerrillas were to form a provisional government with those attributes, as a rival to the Sovietbacked government in Kabul, they would have earned recognition from the international community,

General Wojciech Jaruzelski, the Polish leader, first proposed the measure in March, before the outbreak of the strikes.

According to a copy of the draft law obtained by Western news agencies in Warsaw, the measure would empower Deputy Prime Minister Zdzisław Sadowski, the architect of General Jaruzelski's six-month-old economic program, to freeze wages and prices, impose taxes, lay off workers, dismiss managers of state enterprises and liquidate improfitable companies.

The law would also suspend the labor code of 1982 for the rest of the year, preventing official trade unions from carrying out disputes with management over wages or striking. All other protests are banned, and violaters could be subject to one-year prison terms, according to the draft.

The policy plan immediately drew strong criticism from Alfred Miodowicz, a Polithuro member who heads the official trade unions. He said it was "a serious blow" to General Jaruzeiski's "process of democratization" and added that "trade unions stripped of their legai rights will not be able to bear responsibility for reforming the economy." The statement by Mr. Miodowicz, which followed a press

 Play Lotto 6/49—Canada's Favorite Government Lottery Pick your own "Lucky Numbers" when you play • Record prize of $13,890,588.80-all CASH-TAX FREE!*

NOW YOU CAN WIN BIG

For years Canadians have been striking it rich in Lotto 6/49-Canada's most popular lottery. In fact, last year Lotto 6/49 paid out over $500 Million dollars in prizes! Almost every week new millionaires are being made by playing this fanlastic game. The jackpots list prizel regularly surpass $10,000,000 per draw and have gone as high as $13,890,588. That record prize was won by Lillian and Stewart Kelly, pictured below, and still stands as one of the world's largest all-cash lottery prizes every awarded.

Now, thanks to Canadian Overseas Marketng's unique subscription service, you too have the chance to win a multi-million dollar prize.

MILETI-MILLION DOLLAR PRIZES

And that's just for first priz	ethere are many SMillions more paid out in subsidiary prizes. With five prize categories in all and thousands of prizes won in every draw, it's as if you can't miss!

GOVERNMENT GUARANTEED LOTTERY

Lono 6/49 is an official lottery operated by the ten Provincial Governments of Canada. It's called Lotto 6/49 because six winning numbers from a total of forty-nine are selected each draw. If the six numbers chosen match the six numbers you are playing, you win the jackpot. In addition to the six regular winning numbers chosen, there's one additional number drawn called the "bonus number". If you have any five of the six regular winning numbers correct plus the bonus number, you win second prize. Any five, four, or three of the regular winning numbers correct wins you third, fourth, or fifth prize respectively.

There's a new draw twice each week ion Wednesday and Saturdayi, every week of the year. The jackpot is guaranteed to be not less than $1 Million dollars in each draw. And if the jackpot is not won in the current draw, that prize money is carried over and added to the jackpot for the next draw, growing until it's won!

YOU PICK YOUR OWN NUMBERS

Besides the enormous prizes to be won, the best thing about Lotto 6/49 is that you pick your own numbers. So, instead of just buying a ticket. you really do play this lottery. Many people feel they have certain personal lucky numbers or numbers that have a special significance to them, such as hirthdays or anniversaries, Still others look for statistical patterns in the numbers selected. But whatever method you use, you'll find it much more exciting to play the lottery that less you enter your own numbers.

third straight session in slow trading, as inves-tors remained cautious despite a U.S. economic report that gave the market some cheery news. The Dow Jones industrial average, which lost 16.08 points on Thursday, fell 12.77 to close at 2,007.46. For the week, the Dow lost 24.87 points, or 1.2 percent.

Declines led advances by nearly 2 to 1, as olume slid to 129.61 million shares from 171.84 million traded Thursday.

"The story has to be the across-the-board malaise in all of the financial markets," said Dennis Jarrett, a technical analyst with Kidder, Peabody & Co. "Downside pressure, even a small amount, allows for slow crosion. Prices will fall simply under their own weight."

The market showed some life in the early going after the government said the U.S. civilian unemployment rate fell to 5.4 percent in April, the lowest level since June 1974 and down from 5.6 percent in March.

The report said nonfarm employment rose by only 174,000 in April, far below market fore-casts of about 265,000. The March increase was revised to 296,000.

Wall Street had feared that a surge in non-110% farm jobs would only confirm fears that a strong economy might produce higher inflation and interest rates.

Markets See No Quick Cure Demand For the U.S. Trade Deficit

By LEONARD SILK New York Times Service

EW YORK — It is becoming harder and harder to distinguish good news from bad news. Alan Green-span, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, said this week that he was "optimistic that the balance of trade will continue to improve in 1988 and beyond." That sounded great

But Mr. Greenspan hastened to add that the faster the trade balance improves, "the greater the burden on monetary policy to curtail private domestic spending," lest the rapidly improving trade balance, combined with atrong domestic spending, accelerate inflation.

Did that imply Mr. Green-span would raise interest rates Exports are to slow down the economy? unlikely to grow fast When he was asked, Mr. Greenspan appeared to be saying no, or at least warding off speculation that the Fed enough to offset curbed domestic would soon raise rates.

careful operator, with the patience to do nothing until he can clearly read the writing on the wall. His apparent conclusion is that he does not yet know whether the domestic economy is overstrained and whether he needs to take more forceful action against inflation. Was it good news that he was not ready to tighten up and raise rates? Or was it had news that the Fed was unwilling to head off inflation now? With unemployment coming down and many factories already operating close to capacity, inflation loomed.

Further, companies operating close to capacity would be unable to expand their exports, especially to the face of growing domestic demand. Good news on the profits front, but bad news if it meant greater inflationary pressure that would eventually have to be followed by a more aggressive monetary policy later.

If the Fed continued to delay tightening, perhaps until after the presidential election, would the trade balance really improve? The danger would be that excess demand and inflation would cause the trade deficit to worsen. And that, in turn, would zap the dollar, and drive down the securities markets.

HE MARKETS seem to think that there cannot be an easy remedy for the trade deficit. If a bigger share of U.S.

production is to be shipped abroad, domestic consumption and investment will have to shrink or at least grow at a slower rate. It is highly unlikely that the acceleration of exports can come through fast enough to offset the effect on gross national product - the total output of goods and services - of curbed domestic demand.

A worsening trade deficit would create another danger: that protectionist pressures would intensify and go out of control after the election.

Anti-protectionist forces to the administration, centered to the U.S. State Department, say they hope there will be no trade legislation this year. John C. Whitehead, the deputy secretary of state, said in an interview Thursday that he expected the trade bill to reach President Ronald Reagan in about its existing form.

"I think the president will veto it," Mr. Whitehead said. "His veto message will refer to the 60-day advance notice on plant closings, and we hope it will also refer to other provisions of which we disapprove."

Even if such provisions were eliminated, the anti-protectionists say they hope the president will veto the trade bill. Its most serious fault is in its overall approach to trade policy, they say. Richard Billmine, a Washington economist, observes in an article written for Polynomics Inc., an economic consulting concern, that the trade bill would "make it infinitely easier for an alleged victim of unfair trade practices to spur a government interven-tion, to obtain a positive finding that unfairness exists and to

Stability in Price Of Oil Foreseen Renters

PARIS — The International En-ergy Agency, which monitors pe-troleum supply and demand for the industrialized countries, is predicting slightly stronger world demand for oil this year.

The IEA Monthly Oil Market Report for May shows the agency has raised its estimate for non-Communist world oil demand as a whole by 300,000 barrels daily, to 49.5 million barrels, since its last report in early April.

In the final three months of the year, it believes demand might go to 50.8 million barrels, up 600,000 on earlier forecasts.

IEA officials said the new estimates follow predictions that economic growth in the 24 industrial nations of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development will be around 3 percent. up from 2.5 percent earlier.

The stronger demand supports a assessment among Western oil ex-ecutives that, despite current sur-pluses in the market, prices will probably not drop sharply.

Experts in London say the price of crude oil, around $16 a barrel now for widely traded North Sea blends, could slip by a dollar or two in coming months before crasing the losses and perhaps edging a bitle high by year-end.

The IEA does not detail demand for oil produced by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries or from stocks but its figures suggested demand will rise from 17.4 million barrels daily in the current quarter to more than 20 million in the final three months of the year.

It put OPEC crude oil output in April at 18.2 million barrels a day, up from 17.7 million in March. The IEA said the OECD nations used 36.9 million harrels of oil a day to the first quarter of 1988. This would be 600,000 barrels or .7 percent higher than in the same

1987 period and further evidence of a slow recovery to demand for oil. The IEA said most of the growth in demand was in North America where consumption mainly because of heating oil use rose about 900,000 barrels daily or 5 percent, to 18.9 million barrels a day from marter of last ve

Make-Over Time at Estée Lauder Cosmetics House Embarks on Image Rejuvenation

By Anne-Marie Schiro New York Times Service

NEW YORK -- Estèe Lauder called her son Leonard recently and told him he had to start coloring his hair. She had seen him on television that morning talking about the company's new perfume, Knowing, and decided that his gray hair made her seem old.

Mr. Lauder, the 55-year-old president and chief executive officer of Estee Lauder Inc., laughed when he recalled the incident.

But it is more than an amusing anecdote. It represents new thinking at the venerable cosmetic bouse, which recently has embarked on a major rejuvenation of its image. It eventually will wash the gray out of its advertising, its packaging, its store counters and even the uniforms worn by its sales staff. The changes will affect only the Estee Lander brand, not the company's Clinique, Prescriptives or Aramis lines. "When companies are able to change, they can stay young, fresh and vital and continually renew themselves," Mr. Lauder said. "At a meeting just before Christmas, I told my people. I want to reinvent Estée Lauder."

The first step was hiring Paulina Porizkova, a model with sensuous, woman-of-the-world beauty, to replace the virginal-looking Willow Bay in Lauder advertising. The campaign began to April with the first advertisement for Knowing.

Victor Skrebneski, who has photographed Lau-der's ads for 25 years, is doing the new ads princi-pally in black and white.

Ester Lander is the largest U.S. prestige brand of cosmetics sold in department stores, controlling about 38 percent of the market. Although it is a private company and does not reveal figures, its sales are estimated to total $780 million in the United States and more than $1 billion worldwide. The $23 billion world market in cosmeties and fragrances is currently volatile, with large compa-nies buying up other smaller ones and aggressively seeking a greater share of the pic.

Avon recently bought Giorgio and Parfums Stern, which markets the Oscar de la Renta, Perry Ellis and Valentino brands. Revion, which in the 1960s and '70s was Lauder's major competitor, has re-entered the fray since Ronald Perelman took over, buying Charles of the Ritz and other companics, and starting a major advertising campaign

Compiled by Our Staff From Dispatche MIAMI — Texas Air Corp. and its Eastern Airlines subsidiary said Friday that they had filed a $1.5 billion suit against two airline unions, charging them with an illegal attempt to destroy and take over Eastern.

The complaint charges the Air Line Pilots Association, the Inter-national Association of Machinists and the local leaders of both unions with racketeering, extortion, fraud and defamation in an attempt to destroy Eastern, according to Eastern officials.

The suit was filed Friday in U.S. District Court here. The airline is requesting a jury trial.

The suit contends that the mions conducted a public "smearing" of Eastern's reputation, staged illegal work slowdowns and tried to undermine worker loyalty, Eastern said to a statement.

A spokeswoman for the airline declined further comment.

Charles Bryant, the local president of the machinists' union who was named in the suit, could not be reached for comment. But the pilots' union said the suit was an attempt by Texas Air to shield itself from negative publicity.

"I think what we're seeing is a desperate attempt to draw attention away from Texas Air's and Eastern's growing problems," said Captain Henry Duffy, president of the union. "It is a frivolous lawsuit, top to bottom.

noneconomic services helped reduce losses from the level incurred in the last half of 1987, the company said. Earlier. Texas Air said its consolidated net loss rose to

 Unigestion Acquires Majority in Swiss Bank Reuters Renters ZURICH — Unigestion SA has won major-ity control of Banca Della Svizzera Italiana by joining its 38.7 percent stake in the Swiss bank with a 19.7 percent share the Park Tower group of the United States has bought from a Swiss financier, Unigestioo said Friday. The two stakes will be combined in a holding company of which Unigestion, an asset man-agemeent company based in Geneva, will hold the majority.

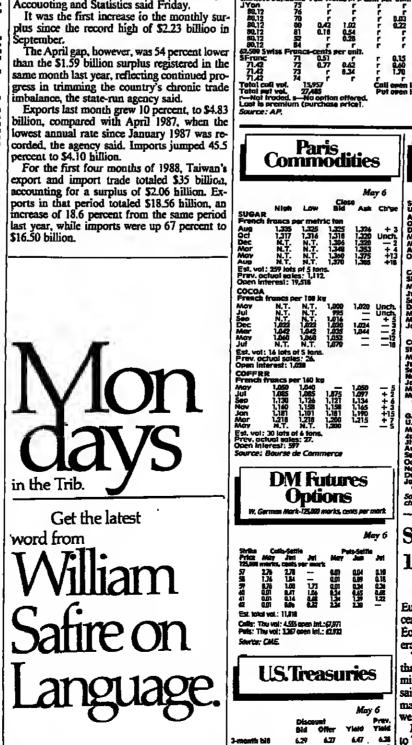

agemeet company based in Geneva, will hold the majority. Unigestion's current stake represents 31.7 percent of BSI's voting shares. The entire Park Tower stake holds voting rights. The statement said Tito Tettamanti, the fi-nancier, had sold an option on $8,685 registered shares and 13,191 bearer shares in BSI that he "owns or represents" to Park Tower. That rep-resents a 19.7 percent share in BSI voting shares.

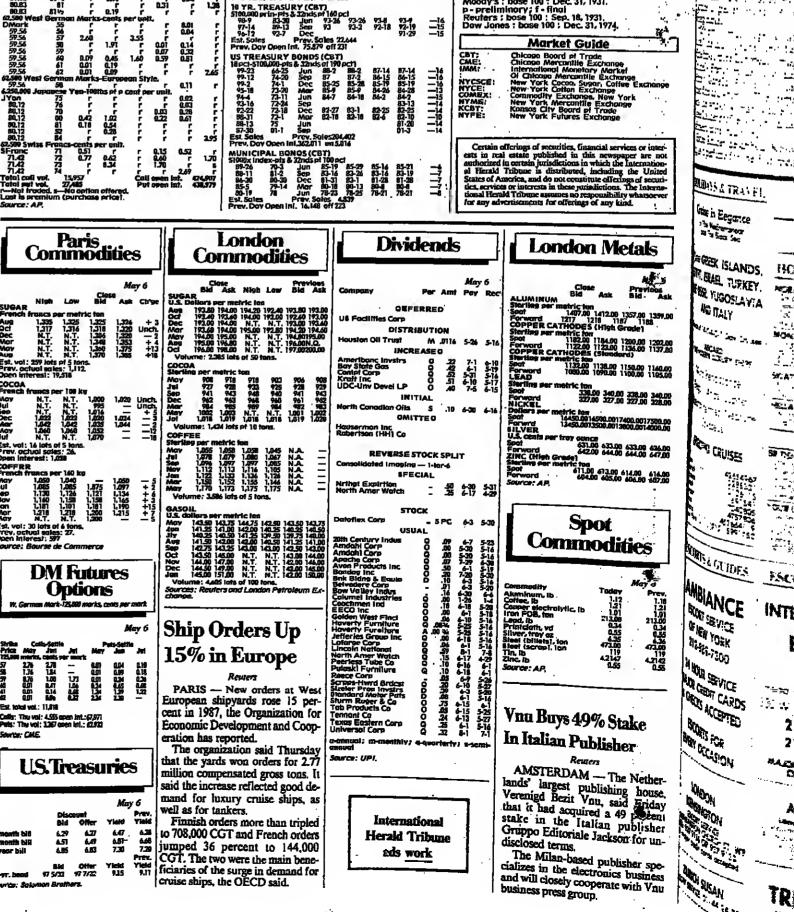

shares. Terms were oot disclosed, and oeither Uni-gestion nor Mr. Tettamanti could be reached for comment.

for comment. BSI management agreed to the move, the statement said, but the bank had no comment. Last week, Unigestion bought its stake in the Swiss bank from Irving Bank Corp. for $390 million. It said it had intended to acquire the majority of BSI's voting stock. The fact that Unigestion is Swiss was be-lieved to play an important role in helping it increase the stake in BSI despite competition from major international banks.

NEW YORK - Western Publishing Group Inc., the largest U.S. publisher of children's books, has said that it is holding merger talks with Golf & Western Inc., the entertainment, publishing and financial services company.

According to sources familiar with the talks, a deal, if it takes place, would be in the range of $450 million to $500 million, or about $22.50 to $25 a share for Western's 20 million shares outstanding. Gulf & Western acknowledged Thurs-Saugu & Western acknowicuga. day that preliminary talks were go-ing on, but said there was no assurance of a deal.

Western said there were unre-solved tax issues arising from the proposed combination. It also said its board was willing to pursue merger talks with other parties.

Western Publishing's stock, which has been active recently on takeover speculation, were quoted late Friday at $22,125 in over-thes a transforme counter trading, down $1,125 on heavy volume. An industry analyst, who asked not to be identified, said . that a price of $23 a share or more seemed fair. Gulf & Western shares lost 25 cents, 10 $37.625, on the Suchard has not yet said what its intentions are in buying Rownree shares, and Zurich analysts said Friday that they doubted that it would make a full bid. But Suchard's holding is close to the 30 percent stake at which, under Brit-rules, it would have to make a full bid. Nestlé holds just over 7 percent of Rowntree, the maker of Kit Kat bars and Smarties. British takeover rules also mean that Nestlé cannot buy Rowntree shares above its 890 pence offer price. Suchard's buying has kept the price above that level. little changed in light dealing Fri-day as trading wound down for the weekend.

A report Friday by the U.S. Labor Department on employment for the month of April had little impact in the market. Traders dis-missed the employment data, which showed a less than expected rise of 174,000 nonfarm payrolls in April and an apparently contradictory 0.2 percent drop in civilian unemployment.

The department said unemploy-ment was at 5.4 percent of the labor force in April, the lowest rate since June 1974.

Prudential-Bache Securities Inc., said, "The job figures had oo impact and the dollar is still in a very narrow range."

Winds Turn on Golfers

The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS -- Desert winds, which had saved the Las Vegas Invitational a day before by blowing away a cloud of toxic gas, turned on the golf tournament Thursday and forced postponement of the second round.

of the second round. Play was held up at 4:44 P.M. PDT, when winds that the National Weather Service said were gusting as high as 55 mph (89 kph) began blowing balls off the greens. Officials said the 71 players left on the three courses used for the competition would mark their positions and return Friday morning to complete the second round. The tournament was reduced from 90 holes to 72.

"Not only was it difficult to play, it was dangerous," said Greg Norman of Australia, who had carded 40 on the front nine at Spanish Trail after an opening-round 68. "Rubbish and trash bins were blowing through the air. "Those of us who were playing at Spanish Trail are out of the tournament," he said. "It's unfortunate, but there it is." Asked how bad the winds were, he replied: "If I'd spread my arms I'd have been a bird."

Bob Lohr, the day's first starter, had shot two-under-par 70 and held the lead when the postponement was announced.

The Itinerant Carlos Fuentes

By Charles Trueheart Washington Post Service WASHINGTON - Some writers

choose their isolation. Carlos Fuentes doesn't think he has that option. Certainly he doesn't have the temperament. He illustrates the point with a remark he says John Updike once made, explaining how the world manifested itself, in letters and magazines and oewspapers, through the little blue mailbox at the end of his driveway. "In Latin America," Fuentes announces with his customary vigor and a pantonimed explosion of his up-turned fingers, "in our little mailboxes, there's a bomb every day."

Fuences, who will turn 60 in November, floats on the wings of an international reputation he has carned and nurtured over the years as a novelist, dramatist, professor, pamphleteer and diplomat. Today he is an elder without portfolio. and a citizen less of any country than of conferences and campuses. "I've learned to write anywhere - in a motel, in a plane, on a hus," he says. "I give myself no excuses for not writing.

Being itinerant is the price be pays to be cosmopolitan. But Mexico, his homeland, remains his literary subject, and the political struggle of the hemisphere his vocation. By plumbing the history and culture he shares with Latin Americans everywhere, Fuentes has become a tribune of sorts - a latter-day Rubén Dario, the revered turn-of-the-century Nicaraguan nationalist poet. The veneration of intellectuals is not unusual outside the United States. "In most Latin American countries, the heroes traditionally have been literary people," says the U.S. oovelist William Styron, an old friend of Fuentes and his companion on a much-publicized January visit to the front lines of revolutionary Nicaragua. For this reason, remarked the Peruvian oovelist Mario Vargas Llosa not long ago, "writers are considered dangerous, because they are dangerous. They have the way to mobilize public opinion." Even before the fall of Anastasio Somoza, Fuentes had been a friendly patron of the revolution, and his sustained support for the cause recently garnered him a coveted Nicaraguan literary prize named for Dario and given before to the likes of Graham Greene and Gabriel Garcia Márquez. "The defense of Nicaragna is the defense of all Latin America." Fuentes said at the award ceremonies in Managua, against "the hegemonic power in the bemisphere."

As it happens, that hegemonic power is where he hangs his hat much of the time. For Fuentes, Harvard, where he has taught for several recent semesters, is "my stable, and it will continue to be so."

But these days — January through May, anyway — Fuentes is living in Washing-ton to fulfill the one-day-a-week obliga-tions of his $50,000 academic appoint-ment at the upwardly mobile George Mason University in Fairfax, Virginia. During the course of a recent afternoon there, Foentes talked about his writing and his politics as he moved hastily from one corner of the campus to another: an undecorated office, a fibrary seminar room, a faculty refectory, a bench in the quadrangle, a lecture hall. The restlessness is macro as well as micro. Last week Fuentes returned from a week in Madrid with his second wife, the Mexican television ocwswoman Sylvia Lemus, and their two teen-age children. There the king of Spain bestowed upon the author another important literary award, the Cervantes Prize, named for the anthor of what Fuentes, and many others, believe to have been the very first novel. On June 1, he reports to Berlin for rehearsals of one of his plays. His longtime U.S. publisher, Farrar Strans & Giroux, has just brought out a book of essays called "Myself With Oth-ers." This fall, a collection titled "Con-stancia and Other Stories for Virgins" will appear. And oext spring, if the trans-lation is on schedule, Farrar Straus & Giroux will issue his long-awaited chef d'oeuvre, "Christopher Unborn."

The novel tells the story, the anthor explains in an office that shows no imprint of his residence. of a child cooceived by a young Mexican couple intent on winning a national contest to produce a child on Columbus Day 1992, the 500th anniversary of the signal hemispheric event. Like "Tristram Shandy" in its day and the Chilean novelist Ariel Dorfman's "The Last Song of Manuel Sendero" in ours, "Christopher Uoborn" is narrated by the conceived one, who listens and watches, possessed of supernatural perceptions and ageless wisdom, from inside his mother's womb.

For readers of Fuentes's oovels -- the most famous is "The Death of Artemio Cruz" (1962); the most "serious" is "Terra Nostra" (1975); the most accessible is "The Hydra Head" (1978); the most recent is "The Old Gringo" (1985) - the narrative point of view of "Christopher Unborn" will seem almost ho-hum. In "The Death of Artentio Cruz," for instance, the story is told alternately by a detached narrator, the dying man and his conscience.

Though he is a best-selling author in Mexico and a better-selling author elsewhere than most serious novelists have any hope to be, Fuentes speaks with something like envy of writers who are successful on both levels," the commercial and the literary. The two he names, Dickens and Balzac, "didn't have to compete with television and movies and information, a barrage of things demand-ing your attention" — what be calls, felicitously, "other claims on language."

Fuentes faults North Americans for being disconnected from their past, for what amounts to a profound failure of memory. "The United States is an amne-siac country," Fuentes says. "You forget an essential fact of the Founding Fathers: that you were revolutionaries. So that when another American country builds its revolution, 'Hey! What are they doing? What is this?' Well, these are the things revolutions do, and your revolution did it."

Because of his revolutionary sympa-thics, Fuentes in the past has been denied entry to the United States and over the years has been hassled by U.S. authorities. Besides his fiction - and plays and films and critical essays — he has written political tracts, including an impassioned report on the events of May 1968 in Paris, and countless articles on the passing international scene. For the Latin American writer, such engagement is second nature. "Many of the novels of the Mexican Revolution." he says, "were written on horseback by followers of Pancho Villa." So how does he account for the relative quiescence, politically, of his fellow writers north of the border?

"In this country," he answers pleasant-ly, "the writer has the sense that these matters are taken care of, well taken care of, by the strength and diversity of the political and social institutions, by the press, by the Congress, by the unions." He doesn't sound as if he believes they are wrong to feel this way —but does this mean Fuentes begrudges U.S. writers the luxury of their isolation and ease? He sips his orange juice thoughtfully, "Tm not begrudging anybody," he diminishing. Sooner or later this is going to be the quandary of the United States: Are we going to be a democracy or are we going to be an empire?"

This makes Fuentes think of Oliver North. In his congressional testimony on the Iran-contra affair, as Fuentes saw it, North "had this incredible nostalgia for could only act like them." " Fuentes says, the novelist shifting into the voice of North. " "They don't have to consult Congress. They don't care about things coming out in the media - nothing comes out in the media. Why can't we be like them?" Fuentes returns to Fuentes. "You cannot conduct the kind of policy that Oliver North wants in a democracy. You can only conduct it in a totalitarian state." Fuentes has been itinerant since his birth in Panama City, where his father was posted as a Mexican diplomat. have become metabolic. "It's a habit," he admits, "it becomes a terrible habit." Does Fuentes himself tire of being

"Yeah, yeah, I am tired of it. I think soon I will settle down," he says, though a look of vague discomfort crosses his eyes at this prospect.

Asked where the settling might occur, he mentions a few places in the Mexican provinces.
